BAKING POWDER FACTS

Brought out by the Official Government Tests.

From Chicago Tribune.

The public is about as responsive to suggestions about the food it eats. Great interest has been taken in the investigations made by the United States and Canadian governments and by the different bodies of health to see the purity or impurity of baking powders, spices and other articles of daily use in the culinary department of our households.

Just now the subject of baking powder is attracting attention. We are all aware of the fact that it is the use of baking powder in cooking that makes the difference between a good cake and a bad one.

There are two main questions that the consumer should ask when buying baking powder. First, is it pure? Second, is it strong?

The official analysis by the United States and Canadian governments has therefore been studied with interest and has pretty definitely established the facts upon this subject. The United States government report gives the names of sixteen well known powders, some of them advertised as pure.

The report shows that the Royal Baking Powder was found the highest in strength, and that it was the only one of the six purest samples of powder.

The Canadian government investigation shows that the Royal Baking Powder was also the purest and strongest of the six samples.

These figures are very instructive to the practical housewife. They tell her that the Royal Baking Powder goes more than half percent, further in use than the others, or is the best.

It is also very instructive to the economist. Still more important than this, however, it proves this popular cake has been brought to the highest degree of purity for its superiority in strength and also consequently that by its use we may be assured the purest and most wholesome food.

The powder of lower strength are liable to have large amounts of water in them. This fact is emphasized by the report of the Ohio State Food Commission, which found the Royal Baking Powder to contain less than five percent of water or foreign matter.

The public interest in this question has likewise caused to be made investigations by our local authorities. Prof. W. H. Haines, of Ohio Medical College, consulting chemist of the Chicago State Food Commission, has found results similar to those reported by the United States and Canadian authorities. Dr. Haines says:

"I have recently obtained samples of the chief baking powders in the market, and have subjected them to careful chemical examination to determine their purity, whiteness and heftiness. As the result of my tests I find that the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all the others in every respect. It is entirely free from all adulteration and contains no water, and is therefore the purest and most wholesome food."

Mr. Haines also says that the Royal Baking Powder is the only one of the six samples that is entirely free from all adulteration and contains no water.

Mr. W. P. Fisher, in his commission to the Bartford Republic of Ohio, August 28, 1911, endorsing to his friend in the following words:

"I inserted my objections to Mr. Stevens' report, and I thought it necessary that I should state that I am a practical baker, and I am a member of the American Baking Powder Institute for more than half of all the years of my life. I am a member of the American Baking Powder Institute for more than half of all the years of my life."

Mr. Fisher also says that the Royal Baking Powder is the only one of the six samples that is entirely free from all adulteration and contains no water.
